GRADUATE STUDENT ADVISEMENT

Emma Slayton, Ph.D., Leiden University, co-promoter with Corinne Hofman: Lesser Antilles; GIS, Memory, and Movement Theory. Received a Carnegie Mellon University CLIR Postdoctoral Fellowship in Data Visualization and Curation.

Sven Ransijn, R.M.A., Leiden University, co-promoter with Corinne Hofman: Dominican Republic; GIS and Landscape Phenomenology. Received an Erasmus Fellowship for learning abroad in Fall 2018.

Georgina Taylor, M.A., Leiden University, promoter: Comparing ceramic stylistic attributes with mural designs in Gallina habitation structures.

SELECTED FIELD, LABORATORY, AND RESEARCH PROJECTS

2008-present Principal Investigator, Gallina Landscapes of History Project, Rio Arriba County, NM.

Description: Public outreach and community-based archaeology, archaeological survey, mapping, ceramic analysis, database management, spatial analysis. 2017/2018 starts a collaborative research agenda between land management agencies and Indigenous communities along with excavations aimed at resolving issues recognized by both of these groups.

2017-present Researcher. Nexus 1492, European Research Council Synergy Grant, Faculty of Archaeology, Universiteit Leiden.

Description: project focused on using geosocial analysis to interpret archaeological data and to examine the construction of archaeological knowledge through quantitative and qualitative means in conjunction with researchers from multiple disciplines outside of archaeology. Field work includes gathering data through excavations, mapping, and survey in the Dominican Republic.

2013-present Project and Field Director. Cultural Persistence and Resistance at the Edge of

- Salado, National Science Foundation Archaeology Program, Archaeology Southwest.
Description: project focused on using collections and targeted excavations at nine archaeological sites to investigate how groups across the southern Southwest interacted with three competing ideologies.
- 2016-2017 Postdoctoral Researcher. Island Networks Project, Netherlands Organization for Scientific Research, Faculty of Archaeology, Universiteit Leiden.
Description: project focused on using geosocial analysis to interpret archaeological data and to examine the construction of archaeological knowledge through quantitative and qualitative means in conjunction with researchers from multiple disciplines outside of archaeology.
- 2013-2015 Survey Field Director and Graduate Teaching Assistant, REU Site: Preservation Archaeology Field School in the Upper Gila Region, Southwest New Mexico.
Description: supervise survey crews, teach survey/excavation methods, teach ceramic analysis.
- 2011-2013 Laguna Mapping Project, Anthropological Research, Inc.
Description: construct and manage archaeological site database, cartography, data mining internet databases and published reports.
- 2010-2015 Southwest Social Networks Project, National Science Foundation Human Social Dynamics program, University of Arizona and Archaeology Southwest.
Description: project team member, assemble ceramic and public architecture database from all excavations of sites with more than twelve rooms across through western U.S. Southwest, apply social network analysis methods and theories to compiled data.
- 2010-2012 Lab Director, Southwest Archaeology Lab, University of Arizona, School of Anthropology.
Description: oversaw lab activities, materials, and scheduling.
- 2010 Rosemont Copper Mine Alternatives, SWCA, Inc.
Description: survey potential tailing deposit areas and evaluate impact to cultural resources.
- 2010 I-10 Prince/Ruthrauff Expansion, Ecoplan Associates.
Description: identify and record early agricultural and Hohokam features during trenching, mechanical stripping, and hand excavation.
- 2009-2011 Communities in Crisis: Kayenta Diaspora and Salado Coalescence in Southwestern New Mexico, National Science Foundation Archaeology Program.
Description: faunal analysis and report writing.
- 2009 Acting District Archaeologist, Coyote Ranger District, Santa Fe National Forest,

- Coyote, NM.
Description: report writing, priority planning and project impact analysis.
- 2009 Crew Chief, Jemez Ranger District, Santa Fe National Forest, Jemez, NM.
Description: project planning, spatial database management, and supervise survey crews.
- 2008 Archaeologist, Proyecto Ynalche, Batán Grande, Peru.
Description: supervise excavation crews, field artifact analysis, write final excavation reports, create publication quality figures.
- 2008 Crew Chief, Coyote Ranger District, Santa Fe National Forest, Coyote, NM.
Description: project planning, spatial database management, and supervise survey crews.
- 2007 Undergraduate Research Assistant, Chaco Stratigraphy Project, University of New Mexico.
Description: profile and map excavated trenches. Begin excavations on historic structure near Pueblo Bonito.
- 2006-2008 Undergraduate Research Assistant, Organic Residue Study, University of New Mexico.
Description: procure, process, and cook flora and fauna for comparative fatty acid library, develop residue extraction method, processing residues from comparative and archaeological samples.
- 2006 Student Participant, Chaco Canyon Field School and Research Semester, University of New Mexico. Chaco Canyon, NM.
- 2006 Student Participant, Field School in Maya Art, Archaeology, and Architecture. Copán, Honduras.
- 1994 Student Participant, Mississippi Valley Archaeology Center Public Field School. Lacrosse, WI.
